

University of Bergamo- Faculty of Economics
12th March 2007 - Demo-Net Workshop on E-participation public policies and implications of e-participation on the decision making process
List of the presented papers

Åström J., Granberg M., Interpretations of e-participation: focusing elite attitudes, Örebro University

Berra M., Building e-deliberative democracy practices through digital communities, University of Turin

Coleman S., E-participation and the policy process, University of Leeds

Coleman S., Foundations of digital government- A critical introduction, University of Leeds

Culver K., Government, E-Government, Democratic Theory, Minorities and the Possibility that Justice is Conflict, University of New Brunswick and Oxford University

De Cindio F., On the interplay between the net evolution and the public policies for (e-) participation, University of Milan

Edwards A., Involvement of elected politicians in online discussions: a research proposal, Erasmus University Rotterdam, The Netherlands

Fortunati L., Interactivity and e-participation, University of Udine

Freschi A.C., White Paper on E-participation public policies and implications of e-participation on the decision-making process, University of Bergamo

Grönlund A., Åström J., Hedström K., Understanding eParticipation challenges in a governance perspective, Örebro University

Lippa B., Westholm H., White Paper (draft) for the Workshop on E-participation public policies and implications of e-participation on the decision making process, University of Bremen

O'Donnell D., McCusker P., Honor Fagan G., Creating Value in the Public Sphere through eParticipation: Where is the Value?, Intellectual Capital Research Institute of Ireland

Padovani C., Communicating Europe together? Participation and (new) media in EU policy discourses, practices and plans to make communication "a policy in its own right". University of Padova

Secher C., Towards understanding eParticipation from an Institutional Perspective, Copenhagen Business School (PH.D. Project)

Wimmer M., Shaddock J., Rosendahl A., Schneider C., A structured approach for extracting strategic-political research needs from eParticipation barriers and challenges, University of Koblenz-Landau